Eureka, Cal.—Alex A. Kels, wealthy and heavily insured local merchant, who was reported missing before dawn this morning and after crashing about the city until day, headed north towards St. Louis flying field at Bridgeton, near here. The airplane docked at St. Louis field at 7:52 a.m.

The ZR-1 departed on its return to Lakehurst, N. J., at 9:30 a.m., flying over Chicago, South Bend, Toledo, Detroit and Cleveland. The dirigible will return to St. Louis Saturday for the Pulitzer air classic.

The man was missing all night as he apparently was attempting to end his life. The muzzles of his rifle was in his mouth and he was attempting to discharge the gun with his toes. At the police station, the prisoner talked about his wanderings since Sept. 12, but was more reticent concerning the burning of a hay stack in which he had hidden.

Mr. Quinn was born in Tell City, Indiana, Sept. 29, 1826, and came to America in 1850, being en route on a sailing vessel for five weeks and three days. He went to Whitewater in 1857 and worked on the narrow gauge railroad. He has lived in Fort Atkinson and vicinity for more than 60 years.

Port Atkinson.—Holding the distinction of having been on earth longer than any other person residing in Port Atkinson, Michael Quinn celebrated his 97th birthday Saturday.

One version of his story to the police was that he said he and another man, whom he had just hired and whose name he did not know, were riding in his automobile. He stopped to let the other man take a smoke and killed his companion. Evidently, he said, the man intended to kill him but when they discovered they had killed the other man, they permitted him to pay them money and allowed him to go. He said he immediately left town.

BADGER PRODUCTS EXPOSITION DEC. 1

Nordman Issues Statement Regarding Coming City Farm Show.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Milwaukee—Producers concern selves in Wisconsin, as elsewhere, are beginning to realize the importance of mutual cooperation and interest, in each other's business as well as in promoting advancement for all concerned in the business.

According to Edward C. Nordman, commissioner of the state department of agriculture, in a statement setting forth the aims and purposes of the Wisconsin Products Exposition to be held in Milwaukee, Dec. 1-8.

Mr. Nordman declared it is not only important to the state that the mutuality of interests of the various producers be established, but that there also is opportunity for the sale of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of Wisconsin commodities.

Plans are being made to "make the show even better than that of last year when, the commissioner says, it was generally conceded to have been one of the largest and most useful expositions of its kind in America.

The object of this exposition," says Mr. Nordman, "is to bring the producers of all kinds of products and those of all shades of opinion together under one roof for one week so that they will be compelled to see something of each other's problems and to acquire first-hand knowledge of their mutual relationship in the affairs of industry as a whole. It is safe to say that this last proposition is the least to be expected, and the most important of all the aims make for all progress."

"Now these producers are learning that other producers are the outlet of market for their goods or services and there is no prospect of substantial prosperity for one unless it is enjoyed by the other also.

Large increases in sales of Wisconsin products are expected as the result of the holding of the December exposition, according to Mr.

Nordman.

WISCONSIN JERSEY HITS PRODUCTION RECORD, 701 LBS.

A Wisconsin eleven-year-old Jersey cow has won an American Jersey Cattle Club gold medal.

That is the figure held broadcast by the officials of the American Jersey Cattle Club. As a result of the performance of one Spec-ty of Silver Lake, owned by Mrs.

Philip Smith, Manitowoc, Wis., starting her year's work when eleven years ago, Specy produced 15,765 pounds of milk and 701.73 pounds butterfat. This qualifies her for one of the coveted medals of the club.

The state record for butter production in the mature Jersey class is held by Milwaukee Light Beauty, with 701.07 pounds of butter from the Jersey Crest

Farms, Oconto Falls; University Ken-nia Climax of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture here tops the list of mature Jersey milk producers, with 15, 850 pounds of milk.

TOBACCO SEED SHORTAGE

Milwaukee—The heavy frost of Sept.

14 "not only ruined millions of dollars worth of tobacco but has possibly created a seed shortage for the next year," the northern Wisconsin tobacco pool bulletin reports. "No seed more than tobacco seed saved by seed growers and farmers which has not yet ripened was more or less damaged," the bulletin said.

BIG TRUST FUND, EDICT OF COURT

Final Settlement of Claims of Divorced Wife Is Made at Elkhorn.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Elkhorn—Creation of $50,000 trust fund as final settlement of claims of Genevieve C. Waller, his divorced wife, will be made by Edward C. Waller, wealthy Chicago real estate broker, as the result of a stipulation entered here in county court Jan. 24, before Judge David A. Johnson.

The court held that the divorce, granted a year ago to Mrs. Waller in the Walworth-county court, was valid and was given in good faith, and refused to sustain the woman's charges that "misrepresentation" of the facts was made in the trial.

Mrs. Waller, who is 36 years old, was granted $50,000 a year.

After his first day of investigation, Dr. Jones, the investigator, last week found that Mrs. Waller, a widow, was a woman of good character, and that she had been a victim of an excited type of mind, craving excitement, and the others are older men and women not mentally alert and forgetful.

He will continue the inquiry for three weeks and submit recommendations to Mayor Devine.

For those who appreciate the utility and economy of the double-faced record, the Victor Company now for the first time offers Red Seal Records in that form.

We have delayed this change because of the difficulty of making satisfactory combinations of selections and as it is clearly impossible to meet everyone's ideas in this respect, the list of single-sided Red Seal Records will be continued.

A separate Red Seal Catalog has been issued, containing new list prices for both Double and Single, a portrait of each artist, with a complete biographical sketch.

This new Red Seal Catalog is worth having. Please call on your dealer, or write to us and receive a copy. Also, hear new Victor Records on these new Victrola models. They are a marked advance in talking machine art.

There is no object upon earth so much attracting the gaze of the intelligent and civilized nations of the earth as this great republic. All men look at us, all men examine our course, all good men are anxious for a favorable result to this great experiment of republican liberty. We are on a hill and cannot be hid. We cannot withdraw ourselves either from the commendation or the reprobation of the civilized world. They see us as that star of empire which half a century ago was represented as making its way westward. I wish they may see it as a mild, placid, though brilliant orb, moving athwart the whole heavens to the enlightenment and cheering of mankind; and not as a meteor of fire and blood, terrifying the nations.

In the Matter of Fairs.

The Gazette believes that the whole plan of fairs, state and county, conducted for money-making is eventually doomed to failure. The automobile has changed things. The position of the public has changed. The country's resident no longer need go to the fair to seek amusement.
His automobile will take him anywhere to amusement parks and events. If the public is to be taxed and public money is to be used for a mere social event and a gathering together of the people to meet each other and shake hands, why not have a show with carnival features and no more? Why entertain a few exhibits unless it is as a subterfuge to get the state money "for the encouragement of agriculture," when it is in fact an encouragement to the carnival, feature? Of eight fairs reported to the Gazette it would seem that the fiercest competition was among the makers and purveyors of the hamburger sandwich, with and without onions. Of the fairs "way down east" this year, the Boston Transcript says:

Patrons of the fall fairs generally express the opinion that a very material improvement is noted in the more stable features of the fairs. There was a time, not very long ago, when many fairs practically no attention was devoted to farm exhibits and quite a number of the meetings were little else than horse fests with the added excitement of the most questionable midways. There were just sufficient agricultural features to give the management an opportunity to claim a State stipend for encouraging agriculture.

The improvement noted this year is gratifying.
We do not know if the State Department of Agriculture has put on the screws or if the managers have concluded that a considerable proportion of the patrons are interested in the exhibits but we think that it may be stated for a fact that the fairs that stage the best exhibits are those that receive the greatest patronage and give the best satisfaction.

Managements that fail in their exhibits are not entirely to blame for all recognize the difficulty of interesting exhibitors! The premiums generally paid are not of sufficient size to attract at the present buying power of the dollar and in the present age possible exhibitors shy at the bother but hard work will produce results and the fair with good farm commercial and machinery exhibits will draw the larger number of patrons.

Modern country fairs are more of social occasions than exhibits of products or appliances.
They afford opportunities to meet friends and make new acquaintances. What is to be seen there is incidental rather than the object in going.

The automobile has proved a godsend to the county fair. In many instances where attendance has declined sadly from earlier days there was a marked revival of interest in such events when it became possible to travel long distances easily over good roads. Where once the caring for many teams had been something of a problem, providing parking space for more numerous automobiles became a greater problem.

The county fair has changed considerably in its features, but it is still potent to draw, and the attendance generally appears to be increasing.

The sabots won't let Germany stop sabotage in the Ruhr.

Moderation?

Having utterly failed in the campaign against prohibition as set forth in the 18th amendment, the New York state branch of the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, has seceded and organized a new society called the Moderation League. Its job is to be the repeal of the Volstead act. There was a stone wall against the repeal of the 18th amendment. This "moderation" society wants light wines and beers but as in all cases refuses to say where the beverages will be sold or how it is intended to permit these drinks without a return of the saloon which they say can never be tolerated. It was discovered in New York state that the 18th amendment was here to stay and when it came to securing funds for carrying on the work against the amendment, the moneyed men would not give because they did not want all the old abuses brought back and now that the saloon and the brewers were out of politics as organized forces they should remain out. However, it will be necessary to explain just what "moderation" means.

What Oklahoma needs to do is to deport the Ku Klux and Walton at the same time on the same boat.

We are being visited in America by a truly great author, Johan Bojer, of Norway, the author of "The Great Hunger" which attained a wide reading in America. Bojer will be at Madison during a tour of the principal cities of the country and his countrymen will give him a warm welcome as he deserves. But they will have plenty of company in others who are admirers of Bojer.

Governmental Changes of a Decade

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—The average American citizen gets in the habit of thinking of his government as a huge machine which slowly grinds out legislation, execution and judgment, proceeding along better paths from day to day, from year to year and even from generation to generation. While this may be true of the stability of the government, it is by no means true of the detail. The American government is changing constantly, not in general form, but in important matters of organization. Only by passing under review a period of a few years can a full realization be obtained of how great the changes are. The American government grows like the banana tree. It seeds forth new branches which come down, root newly in the ground and, in turn, send out still other limbs.

The president's status has not greatly changed, yet in a decade, his duties have increased enormously. He has scores more of important appointments to make than he had ten years ago and his duties have become so heavy that serious consideration is being given a proposal to create an office of assistant president. A decade ago, the idea of a president personally addressing congress was unheard of; today it is recognized as definitely revised custom which doubtless will be followed for generations. The splendor of presidential inaugurations too, has passed. President Wilson, President Harding and President Coolidge has been inducted into office in the last decade with the simplest ceremonies. Whereas, ten years ago, the president saw only a few newspaper correspondents and writers occasionally, had thus only limited direct contact with the reading public, two conferences weekly with all accredited newspaper men have become regular appointments of the chief executive.

Even the staid old department of state, the stern old mother-in-law of the government, has put on new frills in the last 10 years. What with new treaties and agreements and commissions, the business of the department is largely different from what it was ten years ago. The army and navy have grown to a point where they would scarcely be recognized by an officer of 1913 who had been absent in the meantime. New ranks have been created and new organizations put in effect. The Marine corps, which, a decade ago was a small adjunct of the navy, is a great and thriving body of men with an almost independent organization. Development in the air service of these military branches is one of the measures of progress.

The treasury reveals some of the most striking changes. A decade ago the customs constituted the chief source of federal income. Today these receipts, though greater than they were in 1913, are dwarfed beside the collections arising from the internal revenue laws such as the income-tax.
The tax bureau which in 1913 occupied a few rooms in the old Treasury building, has grown so that several entire new buildings, one larger than the original treasury itself, have had to be built for it. Then-years ago there was no federal reserve system, no farm loan system, no intermediate credit banks and no War Finance corporation. These financial and monetary agencies which now are regarded as of inestimable importance in the affairs of the nation, all are either a part of or closely allied with the treasury and not one of them existed ten years ago.
The sub-treasuries which then existed are historical, the twelve federal reserve banks having absorbed their functions.

The post office has not changed so much as some of the others because its function is narrower but there was a period, during the war, when it ran the telegraphs and telephones of the country. There has been notable growth in the volume of business it does; in postal savings, parcel post and such matters.

In the department of the interior are to be found such important new agencies as the Bureau of Mines, the National Park service and the federal Power commission. These are out-growths of old work done by the department but that old work has been so enlarged and altered that it scarcely is recognizable. The oil lands leasing act has been passed and has revolutionized the manner of handling mineral lands.

All sorts of new work is to be found in the Department of Agriculture. The packers and stockyards administration, office of farm management and farm economics and Bureau of markets would be names which the government worker of ten years ago would not recognize and yet they have all been established and are doing important work. Many other lesser activities have been undertaken.

It is only a little more than ten years ago that the great Department of Commerce was organized. They used to be a Department of Commerce and Labor but these have been separated, bringing a new member into the president's cabinet.

The Department of Labor is carrying on activities such as those in the charge of the Children's bureau and the Women's bureau which would have been regarded as chimeraical a decade ago.

Another census, the fourteenth, has been taken by the census bureau and it has revolutionized its methods by improvements to its electrical tabulating machinery. The census helped work out the draft in the World War. The Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce has shown forward in its scientific work with amazing swiftness and has worked out problems of great use to industry.

The enumeration of changes could go on depicting a government about as different from that of ten years ago as the 1910 government was from the Civil war times. And in addition to the notable changes in existing departments there are whole new ones of great importance.
For instance, the Federal Trade commission has been set up and has taken a definite niche in the hall of government. The United States Shipping board, the Tariff commission, the Federal Reserve board, all were unknown 10 years ago.

The present structure was left by the collapse of the remainder of the roof of a tunnel formed, according to C. E. Cleland, by water percolating through a joint or fissure at the stream, thence along a bedding plane and emptying under a flat rapid of the stream. The tunnel then became gradually enlarged until all the water of the stream was diverted from the stream bed below the point of ingress, leaving a bridge. The bridge thus formed has a span of 90 feet and is from 60 to 100 feet wide.

The thickness of its crown is about 40 feet and its arch is 215 feet above the stream. A public road passes over the bridge. —A. D. B.

UNCLE SAM

He doesn't butt in when his neighbors scrub.
He isn't forever re-drawing the map.
He doesn't rush into their rows and brolis.
But Uncle Sam isn't after spoils;
And wherever a bit of the earth slips down,
And tragedy stalks through a stricken land,
He jumps right in with a helping hand.

He is neither deaf when the gossips bring Scandalous tales of some foreign king;
He doesn't hear well when some friend says Tells him what robbers his neighbors are.
For your Uncle Sam, with his daily cares,
Has a way of minding his own affairs;
But his ears are keen to a cry of need,
And on errands of mercy he goes full-speed.

"Not international," some men have said
Of your Uncle Sam when he turned his head.
From theatty rows of the nations small,
"And not concerned with the world at all."
But I answer, when not in heat or full, Wherever, whenever, the people are,
He'll travel the world for mercy's sake.

When there are helpless and hungry men, You'll find him international then;
When there's a job of relief to do,
He's international through and through.
Oh, there's never a need but it's proud I am To be a nephew of Uncle Sam!

For whatever disaster strikes a land
He is always there with the helping hand.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
Edgar Quenton Bartholomew had two nephews, each named the same, sons of two brothers. One had been sent to Europe for a term of years. Edgar's Aunt Orpha made his home with his uncle. Here he met another cousin, daughter of the uncle. Orpha with whom he promptly fell in love only to learn that the young girl was intended to be an accepted suitor. This Edgar and the uncle quarreled. In this house there was a mystery in the many stairs, steps and landings. Up some statement might fall which would fix suspicion or so shift it as to lead us into new lines of thought.

I knew what I had to fear from my own story. I had told it once before and witnessed its effect. But how about Orpha? And Edgar's and that of the long row of servants, in body and soul, in mind, from whose mouths it fell, which would fix suspicion or so shift it as to lead us into new lines of thought.

I had never been in a court-room before and though I know that the formality as well as the uniqueness of a trial would be lacking in a coroner's inquest, I shivered at the prospect for some one of the witnesses soon to be heard had something to hide and whether the discovery of the same or its successful suppression was most to be desired who could tell.

The testimony of the doctors, as well as that of general interest in connection with the case, fell on deaf ears so far as I was concerned. Orla, clad in her mourning garments and heavily veiled, held all my thoughts. Even the elaborate questioning of the two lawyers who dug up the wills, the similarity of disqualification of which undoubtedly lay at the bottom of the dreadful crime we were assembled to inquire into, left me cold. In a way I heard what had passed between each of these men and the testator on the day of the signing. How Mr. Dunn, who attended to my uncle's last hours for you, had recognized the desirability of his client muscling a will in his favor. Under the changed conditions brought about by the reception into his family of a second nephew of whose claims upon a certain portion of his property he must wish to make some acknowledgment, resolved the detailed instructions set him, with no suspicion, following them out to the letter, bringing the document with him for signature on the day and at the hour designated in the notes he had received from his client. The result was so satisfactory that no delay was made in calling in the witnesses to his signature and the disappearance of the will, supposed to be caused by his former will whose provisions differed in many respects from this one. Mr. Bartholomew wished to retain it—the lawyer advised its destruction, the lawyer finally gaining the day, being in Mr. Bartholomew's possession. The will, which was expected to be brought out and read before his eyes, but it was not. Mr. Bartholomew merely promised that this should be done before the day ended. Whether or not he kept his word, the lawyer could not say from any personal knowledge.

Mr. Jackson had much the same story to tell. He too had received a letter from Mr. Bartholomew, asking his assistance in the making of a will, together with instructions for the same, scrupulously written in full detail by the testator's own hand on his paper. In these instructions there were hundred over the laid-side by side with those already passed up by Mr. Dunn. I think they were both read; I hardly noticed. I only know that they were found to be exactly similar with one notable exception I need not mention, the name of the names of the witnesses differed.

What did real purr-ox was a son uttered by Mr. Jackson as coming from my uncle when the will brought for his signature was unfolded before him. "You may be surprised," Uncle had said at the time of my death, "and the other young man none of them had loved the boy enough to do so, many things for me."

I hadn't been married two months before I found that my husband corresponded with other girls who did not know of his marriage. Since then he has gone out with other women and it spends his money in the same old way. I have been greatly distressed, but I have been able to get along with him, but he has all the clothes he wants and all the money to go out nights with women."

It has come to a point where I will have to go to him. My husband and I have always been good home-makers, but I have always dreaded divorce, and because of our little girl I hate to resort to that now. It seems to me that if there is a possible chance, she should not be separated from her father.

I have threatened to leave my husband before and he has always been afraid to give him another chance. For two or three days he is better, but then he pays no attention to his promise. It seems to me I have given him another chance as long as I care to. I no longer have any respect for him, and I could never trust him again. Do you think I ought to give him an

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs.

(Beauty Notes)
Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of de-lonite and mix it into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and dried. No harm or irritation can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real de-lonite.

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 21 other chance again or return to my father? My mother will take care of the baby and I will work. MARGARET K.—

It is really a hopeless situation. So on account of the time he doesn't want to be bothered with her and hardly notices her.

I have never been happy with my husband because he has not been faithful to me. He was wonderful to me before we were married and although I had gone with other young men none of them had loved me as much or done so many things for me.

I had not been married two months before I found that my husband corresponded with other girls who did not know of his marriage. Since then he has gone out with other women and it spends his money in the same old way. I have been greatly distressed, but I have been able to get along with him, but he has all the clothes he wants and all the money to go out nights with women.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in high school. I happened to sit behind a girl who had lice and I got them. Before they were thoroughly eliminated my boy friend happened to notice it. It embarrassed me and disgusted him, and he has not been near me since. I value his friendship but my pride keeps me from telling him of the trouble I am in.

Do you have any advice for me?

—DOROTHY.—Your boy friend ought to have respected you enough to realize that you would try to get rid of such a condition as soon as you noticed it. Since he deserted you, there is little you can do except let him go. Perhaps you will hold on to him on that you are no longer bothered.

MARY ANN.—A girl of 14-1/2 years who is five feet, three inches in height, is normal weight from 100 to 110 pounds.

—MISS X.—Soak hot wet cloths on the parts covered with blackheads until you feel that the pores have been opened, after which massage cleansing cream into the skin to soften the soil in the pores. Remove this either by scrubbing with hot water and fine soap, or by using the powder and comb for the purpose. Then clean the pores at the end of the cleansing process by rubbing a small piece of ice over the skin, or by dashing very cold water over it.

BROWNIE.—I do not think you would be pleased with bobbed hair but if you insist on that you are no longer bothered.

MARY ANN.—A quick way to get rid of lice is to make a strong tea of larkspur, which can be bought at the drug store, and wash the hair in it. Let the hair dry thoroughly and then wash it in soap water, rinsing it thoroughly about six times in clear water.

—MISS Y.—Build up the tissues of the hair by eating the right kind of diet when teething, and whenever fever is present to be sure and keep the bowels active and the child quiet and in bed.

Now what to do when the convulsions really take place.

Undress the child and put him in a tub of hot water, having the water cover the body completely. The water should be about not enough.

Never Give Medicine During Convulsions.

Yesterday I tried to show how to prevent convulsions in the child by giving a diet of soft food with a light diet when teething, and whenever fever is present to be sure and keep the bowels active and the child quiet and in bed.

When the jerking has stopped, take the child out, wrap him in a warm blanket, in bed put an ice cloth on his head, and if you have not already called the doctor, do it then.

Never Give Medicine During Convulsions.

If you are sure the convulsion is over, give a physic by mouth, and an enema of cool water with a teaspoon of salt, to one quart of water. You can hold the baby quietly on the lap and let the excretions run down a newspaper folded sharply in the middle, and to make the baby comfortable, lay the cloth on the back. The baby should not be made to sit up. When this is over, keep him quietly in bed until the doctor arrives.

If an indiscretion of diet has been the immediate cause the emptying of the bowels will ward off another attack. If it is something more serious the doctor will discover it and tell what is to be done.

so that the mother can plunge her arm in to the elbow, and it will feel just perfectly warm. Remember a baby's skin is much more delicate than an adult's, and may easily become raw in the unconscious condition of spasms.

By FRANK SINCLAIR

WITH THE FOOTBALL season now starting to get into its own, the advice of "Doc" Wilce, for 30 years director of football at Ohio State university, are not unique. Wilce says that the majority of fans do not know how to watch the game and as a result lose much of the vital suspense that makes the game so interesting. That makes the game one of high technicinity. Watch each man over a series of plays, Wilce suggests, and watch him over a series of plays to see what he is attempting to do and how well he is doing it, for each player has a definite make-up and plays. "The specialist who limits his interest to one player will the hell misses much of what the other 21 players are doing," he writes. "If you must do it, keep an eye on the man with the ball, but observe other players as well and football will have a new meaning for you."

AT JANESEVILLE and at Monroe, harness race meetings this past summer, accidents occurred. At Monroe, one man was so hurt that he was taken to hospital, and one horse has been put out of the game perhaps for the balance of her natural life. Accidents like these are causing a demand for safety sulky for these horses. One by a horse stepping into the spokes of the wheel of another sulky, or to the harness. Disk wheels of very light metal are being tried but so far have proven too heavy. Not long ago, the sulky was made with a longer shaft, which was discarded for speed, but the accidents then were fewer.

SPEAKING of harness races, some folks have been saying that they would be going out of fashion. In fact, few years. Little is known of that. Janesville has many of automobile races had also motorcycle races during the past summer. They had their thrills of speed, smashup and spills. They had their noise and smell. But, they were mechanical. There's something to it about having a motorcycle race that is lacking when compared with the harness event. Harness racing has its delay factor. Auto races have their delays to cool motors. Between the engine dashes and those of the horse, there is a favoritism still remaining for the old nag, that attraction that comes through seeing something that is alive that has flesh and blood that has temperament; that has "horse sense."

Make your town a playground, not a playground.

"GIBBONS NEXT, THEN DEMPSEY," SAYS FRENCH PUG

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LONDON—It took Georges Carpentier, the French fighter, just about twenty seconds Monday night to put the quietus on the championship aspirations of Jim Beckett, who holds the heavyweight title in Great Britain. Carpenter used both lefts and rights in a brief series of exchanges, and Beckett remained on the floor for a full count.

The two men received a great ovation when they entered the ring for their twenty round bout, and for a fleeting moment Beckett was wreathed in smiles. His supporters, however, could hardly have witnessed a sparring or a disappointment than awaited them.

Beckett led with a right left to his opponent's jaw, but there was no power in the blow, and Carpenter shot over a left followed by a right to Beckett's jaw with terrible force, and Beckett went down for a count of twelve.

The Englishman got to his feet rather groggily, and the Frenchman dashed in with right and left beat Beckett down again near the ropes, falling on top of him.

On rising, Carpenter stood back.

Beckett gripped the bottom rope in an effort to pull himself up.

He was so badly spent that apparently he lost all sense of what was going on, and before the count had been completed his seconds threw in the towel, and thus ended one of the quickest and most sensational of heavyweight contests.

After the fight Carpenter said he was all over to talk about. Asked about his future plans, he replied:

"I am off to America next month and if I beat Tom Gibbons, I expect to meet Dempsey again. I hope so, indeed."

ENGLAND IS COMBED FOR FIGHTER ABLE TO BATTLE FOR CROWN OF DEMPSEY

London—England is fine-combing her ranks of youth and strength in search of a man of sufficient physique to meet the heavyweight champion of the world. For 25 years the country has failed to produce a true heavyweight leader. It is on this account that Tex O'Rourke, who has trained some of America's best fighters, has been brought to England to lend his advice to British pugilistic promoters and sporting clubs in their quest for "British Hope."

At a recent meeting of boxing enthusiasts held in London to elaborate the "movement," the American expert gave an interesting account of the adventures he encountered in his search for a contender for the championship.

All the towns and villages of England, Mr. O'Rourke explained, have been searched for the right man. The boy is to be a combination of physical qualities discovered to pay him the same salary he has been earning and put him through the most rigorous training that an English boxer has ever experienced.

TAUGHT WHILE BUSINESS

He will be taught "the whole business" and when he is fit, started fighting on the bottom rung of the ladder, to pass the test was Leslie Price, son of a Bristol hotelkeeper, who is 6 ft. 2 in. in height, weighs 220 pounds, and is 20 years of age. In the same town was found Henry Walter McClean, 6 ft. 3 in. tall, 217 pounds in weight, aged 22. "I have never seen a man in the jail possessed of more aggression than this one," said Mr. O'Rourke.

MORE GLORY ARRIVES

More Glory Arrives

From Birmingham comes William Prestige, 6 ft. 3 in., 180 pounds, with exceptionally large hands and a very long reach. Liverpool has given Isaac Preston, a giant of 6 ft. 5 in., who has been accustomed at his trade to throw about bags of sugar weighing 200 pounds as if they were feather pillows.

London's contribution is a policeman, 6 ft. 2 in. in height, with good hands and a long reach.

All these "hopes" shortly will begin a long course of training at a camp in Malvern.

And they will do nothing except train and learn for the next six months when the best will be given a month.

Even if they live up to all expectations, it is anticipated that 18 months must pass before any one of them might have a chance of meeting the title holder.

HARDLY AN IDEAL

It does seem unjust to say that a boy, who, in summer vacation, finds time to sing, play the ball and swim here all summer and industriously raids watermelon patches at night, is spending his days in idleness—Kansan City Star.

A Marvelous New Book for the Automobile Owner

What motorist has not wished for a book that would give him just plain, common-sense, understandable instructions showing how to reduce upkeep expenses and get better service from his car? Most automobile books are too technical for the average motorist. Here is a new kind of motor book, written in such simple language and so fully illustrated that any unskilled motorist can easily follow all instructions given. It will save you hundreds of dollars in repair bills, show you how to keep your motor tuned up and run thousands of miles without ever going near a repair shop.

Shows how to find and fix any motor trouble

The simple, practical instructions given enable you to locate any automobile trouble in a few minutes—not hours. Every test, examination or adjustment that the expert mechanic makes, and which you can easily make when you are shown how, is described step by step, with each operation fully illustrated, exactly as if an expert mechanic were standing beside you all the time, telling you what to do and how to do it.

Saves money on repair bills

After showing you where the trouble lies, complete, easily understood instructions are given which show you just what to do to remedy it. If you do not wish to remedy the trouble yourself, you can tell the repair man where it is, and only pay him for the actual time spent in making the repair.

Gives finer points on driving and tuning up

The proper care to give every part of your car is fully covered. Simple, concise instructions are given on the finer points of driving and tuning up the motor. It tells you how to keep your car in such perfect condition that touring will be a pleasure, rarely marred by trouble on the road. You are shown how to keep little troubles from growing into big ones—how to keep your car out of the repair shop and on the road.

BETTER MARKETING, WHEAT SOLUTION

Bankers Committee Given Opinion of War Finance Corporation.

By DAVID L. WRENCE
Copyright 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington.—More orderly methods of marketing and the greater use of cooperative marketing associations would in the opinion of the war finance corporation do more good than the present time in relieving the wheat situation than anything else the government could suggest.

This advice was given to the committee of bankers from the ninth federal reserve district at the conclusion of their visit here.

President Coolidge has let it be known that he will rely on the solutions proposed by the war finance corporation as well as the department of agriculture. The importance of an extension by the war finance corporation in the living wheat had been its financial help to the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana from whence the visiting bankers came was calculated to offset the impression that the government hasn't been doing its utmost to help the farmers in the northwest.

54 Pct. to Four States.

More than 54 percent of the total loans made by the war finance corporation to the whole nation are outstanding at present in the four states above mentioned. And the loans of the war finance corporation exceed by $1,000,000 the loans of the federal reserve system in these same four states. North Dakota alone—seat of the nonpartisan league's radicalism—has received more money from the war finance corporation in proportion to its population and the volume of its production than any other state in the northwest.

Eugene Meyers, head of the war financing corporation, called the attention of the visiting committee "to the experience of the corporation in arranging advances totalling more than $100,000,000 to cooperative marketing associations, principally to organizations holding cotton, tobacco and rice." He added that these associations have proved most helpful "in improving the methods of orderly marketing of American agricultural products and that the loans proved to be safe." The opinion was expressed by the directors of the war finance corporation also that "it would be of great benefit to the wheat growers of the entire country in the relatively small operations of the cooperatives wheat associations could be extended and developed at the present time."

Explained European Situation.—Mr. Meyers, who has been investigating the European wheat situation at first hand, explained why "under present conditions of fluctuating exchanges the European buyers do not contract for wheat ahead but buy from hand-to-mouth and do not carry the normal pre-war stocks of wheat." He advised that "no wheat will be available." This situation, he thinks cannot change at present "and the producing countries must carry the stocks which formerly were carried by the consuming countries; this means for America slower marketing, with warehousing and financing adjusted to slower distribution and emphasize the importance of developing the cooperative market." In conclusion, he said, "at least two of the proposals thus far made for the financing of the American wheat export trade contemplate a scheme whereby the United States government would buy from the American farmers, at a fixed price, and take the risk of loss due to changing conditions in foreign exchange. There is no sympathy with that line of thought in the executive branch of the government and there will be no acceptance of it in congress unless the radicals gain control in which case they might have to reckon with a presidential vote."

LIMA.—A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Gus Schmidt Friday, Sept. 28.—A parent-teacher association was organized here Friday. Mrs. Ada Elmer was elected president; Mrs. Elvina McComb, vice president; Miss Melpara Bennett, secretary; Mrs. Nora Gandy, treasurer; Mrs. Lester and daughter, Cora, Dolan, visited the former's sister, Mrs. O. A. Roe, last week. They were accompanied by Donald McComb, who has resumed his studies at DePauw college.
